

(1) Three Little Pigs by the Ocean

Once upon a time, there were three little pigs who lived in a coastal area. The first little pig built his house out of straw on the beach. The second little pig built his house out of sticks near the mangrove forest. The third little pig built his house out of bricks on a hill overlooking the ocean.

One day, a big storm hit the coast, bringing with it strong waves. "Look at the waves, they are huge. I'd better go back to my straw house and stay inside," said the first little pig. But then the waves hit, and splash, the straw house was shattered within three seconds. After the first little pig's house was destroyed, the second little pig came to his aid and asked: "Brother, are you okay?" as he helped his brother up from the sand.

"I'm okay, but my house is gone," replied the first little pig. "Don't worry, brother, my house is made of sticks, and it's strong. We'll figure something out together," said the second little pig, putting his arm around his brother's shoulders as they walked home.

Soon after they got to the stick house, the waves came and destroyed the stick house within ten seconds. The two little pigs ran to their little brother for help. "Help, help, brother. The waves are big and strong. Our houses are gone. We need shelter," cried the first and second little pigs. The third little pig opened his door and said, "Come in, my brothers. My brick house is sturdy and strong. It will keep us safe." When the waves hit, the water splashed on the walls and windows, but the house stayed still.

The first and second little pigs stayed in the brick house and worried about their future. "We need to rebuild our houses," said the first little pig. "Yes, and this time we need to make them stronger," said the second little pig. "We need to make them environmentally friendly, too," said the third little pig. "I've learned about SDG14 in school, and it's important to conserve our oceans and marine resources," the first little pig said. "Yes, let's try to rebuild our houses with materials that can help reduce ocean pollution," said the second little pig. "I'll help you," said the third little pig.

"I found lots of biodegradable coconut leaves that we could use," said the first little pig. The second little pig then replied, "Bamboo grows quickly and can resist storms, and it's a sustainable and renewable resource." The third little pig helped them by using bricks made from recycled plastic and glass.

After the houses are done, the third little pig said, "We did it! They are not only stronger and safer but also better for the ecosystem. And the best thing is, we all did our part in reducing ocean pollution and protecting our environment." "I'm so proud of us," said the first little pig. "Let's celebrate!" suggested the second little pig.

From that day on, the three little pigs lived happily ever after in their new houses.

(2) The four dragons

Once upon a time, there were no rivers and lakes on earth, but in the Eastern Sea, four dragons lived in it. They were ‘the Long Dragon, the Yellow Dragon, the Black Dragon and the Pearl Dragon’. One day the four dragons flew from the sea into the sky.

"Come over here quickly!" the Pearl Dragon cried out.

"What's up?" asked the other three, looking down in the direction where the Pearl Dragon pointed.

They saw many people putting out fruits and cakes, burning incense sticks. They were praying!

"Please send rain quickly, God of Heaven, to give our children rice to eat." said a woman.

"How poor the people are!" said the Yellow Dragon. "And they will die if it doesn't rain soon."

The Long Dragon nodded. He suggested, "Let's go and beg the Jade Emperor for rain. “

The crops on earth are withering and dying. I beg you to send rain down quickly!" The Long Dragon said to the Jade Emperor.

The Jade Emperor pretended to agree while listening to the songs of the fairies.

Ten days passed, not a drop of rain came down. The four dragons felt very sorry.

The Long Dragon had an idea. He said “Is there not plenty of water in the sea where we live? We should scoop it up and spray it towards the sky.”

“Good idea!” said the other dragons.

The Black Dragon and the Pearl Dragon scooped up water in their mouths, making the sky dark all around. The sea water became rain pouring down from the sky.

"It's raining! It's raining! " the people cried with joy.

"How dare the four dragons bring rain without my permission!" said the Jade Emperor.

The Jade Emperor ordered the heavenly generals to arrest the four dragons. The Mountain God used his magic power to make four mountains fly there. The four dragons turned themselves into four rivers, so China's four great rivers were formed.
